INFORMATION RELATED TO ERASMUS KA171 MOBILITIES

TYPES OF MOBILITIES

STAFF MOBILITIES

There are two types of staff mobility

Staff Mobility for Training (STT)

Open to both academic and administrative staff.

Staff Mobility for Teaching (STA)

Open to academic staff. A minimum of 8 teaching hours (or course-related activities) must be planned.

For both mobility types, a minimum duration of 5 days is required

Mobility Procedures

The home university announces a call for staff mobility and issues an official decision letter for the selected staff member.

The selected staff prepares the required documents (including the Staff Mobility Agreement with the planned mobility dates).

The host university Erasmus Office issues the Letter of Acceptance. The host university Erasmus Office prepares the grant agreement and completes the payment procedures.

Staff members receive: €148 per day (daily grant)

Travel support is provided according to the Erasmus+ distance bands

STUDENT MOBILITIES

Student Exchange for Studies

Students from partner institutions can study at the host university for one academic term.

Applications must be submitted within the official deadlines of the academic year.

Student Exchange for Traineeship

Students can carry out a traineeship at the host institution to gain work or research experience for a period of 2–3 months.

This mobility can take place at any time of the year.

Doctoral Student Mobilities

Both short-term and long-term doctoral mobilities are available.

Short-term doctoral students may participate in either type of mobility (study or traineeship) for a duration of 5 to 30 days.

Mobility Procedures

Students are selected according to the home university's criteria. A minimum B1/B2 English level is required.

Selection criteria—such as level of study, number of mobilities, and specific requirements—should be agreed upon between the institutions. The selection process must be transparent and open to all eligible students.

Selected students must be nominated with an official decision document issued by the home university.

Students prepare their Learning Agreement (for studies or traineeship) and submit their application to the University Erasmus Office.

The university issues the Letter of Acceptance and begins the mobility procedures.

Students receive a monthly grant of €800: 80% is paid in advance, The remaining 20% is paid after all mobility requirements are completed.
